Some of the repercussions to the speech of Premier Imre Nagy, outlining the new Government policy were as follows:

1. In the town of Győr the workmen of the Driving Gear Works (Hajtóműgyár), having heard the new Premier's speech, failed to report for work in the foundry of this factory on Sunday, 5 July 1953, basing their action on the Premier's statement that the Government will not tolerate extra hours. This followed an episode on the evening of 4 July 1953 when, at a local dance, these same workers beat up the Party Secretary. The AVH did not dare to intervene.
2. In northern Hungary an agricultural production cooperative was immediately dissolved by the members, who simply sorted out their implements and machines and left.
3. The Gorki Institute in Budapest is said to have been dissolved. This institute was a secondary school where the children of Russians working in Budapest were educated, together with the children of high Hungarian functionaries.
4. About 800 prisoners - partly internees, partly under sentence - working in Csozslány mine near Tatabánya were told on 7 July 1953, that they would be released at the end of the week with the exception of 40 people. Those to be released have been given the option of continuing to work as miners, but on a free footing.
5. The internment camp in Szolnok is also reported to have been dissolved. The prisoners are said to have been released on 8 July 1953.
